PRICE THREE CENTS

Man is Held in Theft of Cow; Found Along Road Friday

Trace Man Through License Plates On Car; Arrested On Highway, Near McConellsburg.

Adams county's well known cow mystery, for the solution of which the commissioners have offered a reward of $500, was solved, police say, with the arrest late Friday afternoon of Edward Vincent, alias Edward Sanders, 35, of Mannschoke, Bedford county.

Although the cow, a registered Jersey, stolen from Bigham Brothers' farm, Freedom township, during the night of October 13, has not yet been recovered, police say Vincent told them to whom he sold it and they plan to bring it back to Gettysburg on Monday.

Vincent was arrested by Sergeant Joseph Merrifield, of the local substation, of state police; Sheriff John C. Shearer and High Constable George Aughinbaugh. It was indicated to-day that Sheriff Shearer and Constable Aughinbaugh, who with the state trooper, have been working on the solution of the theft since it occurred, will share the $500 reward offered by the county commissioners for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the robbery. State police, it was pointed out, are not allowed to accept rewards for their services.

Found Along Road

Vincent, formerly of Emmitsburg, Maryland, has been living at Mannschoke, 18 miles west of Bedford, under the name of Edward Sanders, authorities said. He is married to Miss Mary Sanders, of Fairfield, according to the police, and assumed his wife's name after their marriage.

Vincent was arrested on the Lincoln Highway, five miles west of McConellsburg, shortly after 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, after he had trouble with his truck, formerly a 1919 touring car. The alleged cow thief had come through Gettysburg Friday, but the authorities set out for Mannschoke without that information.

As the local officers were descending a steep hill, west of McConellsburg, they saw the truck at the side of the road where it had run into a fallen tree after the brakes locked and the machine had become unmanageable. The officers waited three hours until Vincent returned to the truck with a Bedford garageman to pull him in.

Surrounding their man, the officers asked the alleged robber if his name was Sanders. He said it was, and he was arrested immediately and brought back to the Adams county jail where he is lodged in default of $500 bail on a charge of larceny.

Won't Name Accomplices

According to the officers, Vincent admitted stealing the cow, and the

Mr. Plank, who resides on his farm along the Gettysburg-Fairfield road, near the latter place took out his hunting license for the coming year at the office of Harry J. Called before Justice J. L. Hill for a preliminary hearing, this morning, J. Edward Hall, Buchanan Valley, paid fines in two of the three charges laid against him as a result of the alleged shooting of a fawn, October 20, after pleading guilty to the counts. Hall, a former director of the poor in Adams county, was charged with killing a deer out of season, failing to display his hunting license properly and resisting an officer. On the charge of killing the deer, the Buchanan Valley man was fined $100, and for failing to properly display his license, he was assessed $20. The third count was dropped.

Hall appeared for the hearing with his attorney, William Hersh, and entered pleas of guilty. No witnesses were heard, and the whole business required less than ten minutes to settle.

The student actors of Gettysburg high school who appeared in the farce comedy, "Green Stockings," a satire on the prevalent English custom of requiring the eldest unmarried daughter in a family to wear green stockings at the marriage ceremony of a younger sister, scored a distinct hit.

15 TONS OF HAY BURN THURSDAY

Fire, Believed to be of Incendiary Origin Destroys Stacks Near New Oxford.

Fire believed to be of incendiary origin, caused the loss of 15 tons of hay valued at $150, on the farm owned by Jesse Bridge, near Gulden's Station, early Thursday evening. Mr. Bridge's son, Guy, is the tenant.

The fire was discovered shortly after 7 o'clock Thursday evening by members of the Bridge family. Three stacks of hay, five tons to a stack, were blazing when the flames were discovered.

A call to the New Oxford fire company was responded too by a pumper and a service truck from that department. The pumper was the first to respond and due to the fact that no water was in the radiator the truck became so heated that it stopped and the firemen lost nearly a half hour in working on the motor before the truck was started and sent through to complete its run.

Efforts of the firemen to throw a hose stream on the blaze would have proved fruitless, and the stacks were allowed to burn. The farm is located at Gulden's Station, near Salem church, four miles west of New Oxford.

Joseph Mumper, a sophomore at the school, but not a member of the football squad, was driving the touring car, owned by Clarence Cromer, Carlisle street, at the time, according to Guile W. Lelever, principal at the high school, who remained in Hershey with the injured boys.

Machine Upsets
As the Gettysburg machine was traveling through Hershey at about 11 o'clock this morning, a light machine came out of a side road, crashed into the side of Cromer's car and upset it. After the machine upset, it caught fire, but the blaze was soon extinguished by the Hershey fire department, near which the accident occurred.

After the crash, the injured boys were taken to the Hershey hospital where a physician dressed their injuries. Authorities at the hospital this afternoon informed The Gettysburg Times that none of the boys was seriously injured, but that all had been advised to return home after being discharged.

Beales, who is manager of the football team, complained of a severe headache at the hospital, and hospital authorities advised him to stay at the institution for at least several hours for observation. He is known to have suffered a severe bump on the head, but there is no evidence of concussion or fracture, hospital authorities said.

Machine Badly Damaged
William Martin's lacerated knee required two stitches to close, hospital authorities stated.

Cromer's machine was badly damaged in the crash and by the fire which followed. The name of the driver of the car which ran into the Gettysburg machine was not known at the Hershey hospital or at the garage where the car was taken.

Coach Martin and the two boys in the wrecked car who escaped injury, went on to Reading where the game was to be played, despite the loss of Cook, a varsity tackle and Hartman, and Martin, both varsity guards.

Fisel, who suffered a broken collarbone is a scrub backfield man, but coaches considered him likely to have played in this afternoon's game.

The Cromer car was the third of three machine loads of players going to the game. The squad left Gettysburg at 8:30 o'clock this morning, intending to reach authorities believe he will waive a preliminary hearing and plead guilty when arraigned before Judge D. P. McPherson at the November term of court. The officers expressed the belief that Vincent had help in stealing Biglums' cow, although he refused to divulge the name of any accomplice.

According to the police, the tire treads on Vincent's truck correspond to the marks in the road near the Biglums Brothers' farm where the truck was stopped to load the cow.

Police refused to divulge how they first learned the possible identity of the thief, although they indicated that it was through the license number of the truck. After learning two truck license numbers, they eliminated one machine, owned by a man in Sharon and set out to look for Vincent, or Sanders, in whose name the machine was registered at Harrisburg.

Vincent told the authorities that he had sold the cow, valued at $360, for $90, the officers said, but they refused to say where the Jersey was.

According to Constable Aughinbaugh, who is being given credit for learning Vincent's identity through the license number of his truck, the alleged thief was in trouble in Emmitsburg three or four years ago. He is alleged by the officer to have stolen a quantity of hides and furs, and to have escaped arrest by drawing a revolver on officers about to take him into custody.

After being brought to Gettysburg, Friday evening, Vincent communicated with his attorney, William Hersh, who, after learning the evidence the authorities had, advised his client to plead guilty, officers said.

The stolen Jersey was one of four valuable cows the Biglums Brothers had purchased in Ohio.

After the robbery, the county commissioners offered a reward of $300 for the arrest and conviction of the thief or thieves, later increasing the reward to $500. The reward was posted to stop similar thefts before they became general in the county, the commissioners said.

FAIL TO FIND REMUS' FORTUNE

Lockbox Held in Name of slain Wife Proves to be Empty; Continue Search.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Nine official observers hovered expectantly over a little man drilling into a black safety deposit box in the vault of the Rogers Park National bank yesterday. Suddenly his tiny, whirling drill bit into the secret of the lock, the lid flew back, and there was revealed—nothing.

Astonishment and chagrin overspread the features of the watchers, for some of them at least had expected to find the box a cache for possibly $1,000,000 worth of the assets George Remus, Cincinnati bootleg king, asserted the wife he recently slew had made away with while he served in the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

In Name of Mrs. Holmes
The safety box was held in the name of Mrs. I. A. Holmes, believed to have been an alias used by Mrs. Remus, who formerly was Mrs. Imogene Holmes, and, according to the bank's record, she twice had visited the box. There was testimony adduced here yesterday in a deposition that Mrs. Remus had been seen about that time in possession of a great hoard of money, securities, jewelry and unset gems.

The first time Mrs. Remus visited the bank was August 8 last. She went again, for the last time, five days later.

Disappointed, but still believing that ultimately much of Remus' money and securities would be found in Chicago, Harry N. Pritzker, attorney here for Remus, said he would continue his search through four other banks and for holdings under seven different aliases Remus had written that Mrs. Remus might have used.

STOVER'S TEAM CLEANING UP

Mentor of Darby High School Shakes Up Squad and Wins 6 Games After Losing Two.

R. H. "Buzzy" Stover, graduate of Gettysburg college and coaching his first year of high school football at Darby, near Philadelphia, arrived in Gettysburg this morning to attend the homecoming game this afternoon, on Memorial field.

"Buzzy's" arrival recalls the remarkable record he is establishing at Darby, with his football team.

Losing the first two tilts, the Stover-coached tribe staged a comeback and counted four victories in a row. The first contest was lost to Landsdowne, 21-0. Norristown high followed by copping 6-0. Then "Buzzy" shifted his aggregation and came through with the following:

Darby 7, Abington 0; Darby 7, Ridley Park 6; Darby 14, Alumni 13; Darby 49, Swarthmore 9.

Darby's victory over Ridley Park was the first since the two schools met on the gridiron a number of years ago. It was also Ridley's first defeat in fourteen games. Darby's one point margin was considered by critics as a sensational victory, because of the many breaks against them. Several opportunities to score were muffed, but the Stover tribe emerged on the long end of the score by a goal.

In beating Abington high, Darby's stock jumped considerably. Abington had not lost a game in two years. This year they defeated the strong LaSalle high squad, which in turn defeated West Catholic high of Philadelphia, considered the outstanding high school team in the Quaker city.

Three more games remain on Darby's schedule and friends of "Buzzy" are confident he will come through the season with a fine record.

According to an Associated Press report from Hershey received by The Times later this afternoon, the name of the driver of the other car was Raymond Witter, of Hershey.

After the accident, Mumper was taken into custody, as driver of the machine, for reckless driving, and was held under $1,000 bail. Efforts were made to secure his release under bail, furnished by his uncle, J. I. Mumper, Baltimore street.

PREP DEFEATS ST. MARY'S 6-0

Academy Team Pushes Over Touchdown in Last Quarter to Win Friday Evening.

Gettysburg academy defeated the St. Mary's prep team at the Emmitsburg field Friday by a score of 6-0.

It was a hard fought game from beginning to end, with Gettysburg making over 10 first downs while the mountaineers had but two.

Mt. St. Mary's kicked off and Arnold, the academy's right end, ran the ball back 10 yards before being downed. After a series of hard line backs coupled with end runs the academy punted to Mt. St. Mary's 35 yard line, but were forced to punt. The quarter ended with the ball in Gettysburg's possession on their own 42nd yard line.

The second and third quarters were uneventful with Bill Ross, the Gettysburg quarter and Jim Marks, tackle, doing stellar work at line backing.

There were three penalties in the third quarter. One was on Gettysburg and the other two on Mt. St. Mary's.

The fourth quarter opened with both teams trying end runs. In this quarter Bill Ross, prep back, made an eighty yard plunge through the line for a touch down. This was the only score of the game as the try for extra point failed.

YOUTH HURT IN BOUT IS CRITICAL

Forestry Academy Student In Precarious Condition at Baltimore Hospital.

Sellers Carpenter, a freshman at the Pennsylvania State Forest academy, is in a critical condition at the Maryland General hospital, Baltimore suffering from injuries received in a boxing contest.

Four other students at the academy, at Mont Alto, have been suspended as a result of the bout, which was part of a hazing program to which young Carpenter, it is said, refused to submit.

Operation Performed

Dr. Charles Bagley, brain specialist, performed an operation Friday and today the boy lay strapped in a straightjacket, crying in delirium, "Don't let them hit me again. Don't let them beat me." He is suffering from concussion of the brain.

According to a dispatch the boy's father, J. S. Carpenter, of Harrisburg, said his son returned to his home October 15 with his body covered with bruises as the result of hazing.

Upon returning to school, students said, young Carpenter incurred the disfavor of sophomores by refusing to submit to hazing or to abide by freshman rules. Carpenter and Frank Miller, a sophomore, of McKees Rocks, quarreled and agreed to settle their differences with boxing gloves.

Knocked Out In Fight

Dr. E. A. Zeigler, principal of the school, learned of the plans and decided to forbid the fight, but the students met before he made the announcement and Carpenter was knocked out.

The freshman was taken to a hospital at Waynesboro and appeared to be improving, Thursday, however, his condition became serious and he was taken to Baltimore for observation by specialists.

In addition to Miller, Doctor Zeigler suspended Walden Whittaker, of Pike county; John Sadosak, of Mount Union, and W. H. Cummins, of Philadelphia.

9 KILLED IN GALE

London, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A total of nine deaths and considerable damage to property was done today in a great gale which struck the British Isles. Reports from every part of the country say that houses were damaged, roofs torn off, telephone wires swept down and trains brought to a standstill by fallen trees.

293 DEAD, TOLL OF SUNKEN LINER

Rescue Ships Reach Port With Immigrants; Survivors Describe Scenes.

Rio Janeiro, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The ocean's toll from the ill-fated Italian liner Principeessa Mafalda was placed tentatively at 293 dead and missing last night as rescue ships in port completed discharging their unexpected passengers.

The actual story of the disaster also began to take definite form as the accounts of survivors were pieced together. Terror gave those rescued almost as many views of the tragic scene as there were survivors, but many points stand out as agreed upon by many or all who lived to tell the tale.

Of the 1256 persons said by the Italian embassy to have been aboard the vessel, 963 were accounted for last night. The French liner Mosella took fifty-two survivors into Bahia.

No Survivors On Small Boats

The French steamship Formosa, first rescue ship on the scene, brought 353 survivors here yesterday and the Dutch vessel Alhena brought 531. Twenty-seven more have reached Pernambuco aboard the Italian steamship Rosetti. The total on these ships is 963, and it is not believed there are any survivors on any of the three or four smaller vessels that answered the Mafalda's distress call.

Nearly all of the survivors are agreed that dancing, laughter and festivities on the beautiful tropic afternoon were suddenly turned to gloom by the crash of a breaking propeller shaft and the sound of water rushing into the vessel's stern. From that point on accounts diverge as to details.

Many say there was an explosion, and that the ship's flooded boilers tore open the ship's hull as they burst. Others deny there was an explosion. Some declare Captain Simon Guli calmed the passengers by telling them the accident was not serious, and that festivities were resumed; they maintain that time was lost because of this, with resultant loss of life in the haste when the ship's boats were finally launched.

Tells Of Battles With Sharks

Some told of sharks devouring terrified victims as they struggled in the water, while other survivors who did not see the sharks were skeptical. One of the most vivid and gruesome word pictures of the sea beasts after their prey was painted by John Lyra Chaves, a passenger aboard the Mosella.

Ghastly medallions picked out of the darkness by the searchlights of rescue ships, he said, revealed shrieking men, women and children swimming or clinging to wreckage. Some of them were frantically trying to escape sharks, he declared.

One man was saved from a shark as he clambered aboard a lifeboat by the flashing of a pocket searchlight into the beast's eyes, according to Chaves.

FLEAS "ATTACK" MAN; OPEN PROBE

Negro Reports Horde of Vermin From Treasury Department Files Hindered Him.

Washington, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A "savage" attack by a "horde of fleas" is given by a Negro employee of the General Accounting office in a report to his chief clerk as the reason for his delay in delivering a batch of documents from the filing room.

The employee wrote: "Just when I was about to withdraw the desired documents I felt a great pulling and gnawing on my lower extremities and looked and beheld that I was literally covered from the knees down with the little vermin."

"Without a word of admonishment or caution, this army of noxious insects sprang upon me from the floor and began biting in a most savage manner, each having stickability greater than the adhesiveness of a postage stamp, even the smaller ones sticking till death."

"After procuring help to assist me in making the little pests let me alone I then started driving them out from where they were in hiding in the file."

The Comptroller-General has heard about it and has asked the Treasury Department, which controls the building, to do something about the fleas.

"GANTRY" WILL NOT APPEAR ON STAGE

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The New York Sun said Thursday that Bayard Veiller has destroyed the manuscript of his dramatization of Sinclair Lewis' novel, "Elmer Gantry," and returned his $2000 advance royalties because he believes production of the play would offend "too many people, especially clergymen."

Veiller, author of a new Broadway hit, said he had completed translating the novel for the stage after six months. The production had partly been cast with Harry Bannister in the title role.

"My play would only increase hostility toward the theatre," Mr. Veiller said. "It would have made every clergyman in New York mad, so what's the use. I don't need the money."

SYNOPSIS

Mario de Solano y Vasquez, proud and romantic Spaniard, claims in 1776 for King Philip of Spain the land bordering on what is now San Francisco Bay. The Vasquez hacienda is erected on the beautiful and extensive dunes overlooking the bay, and life moves along in the indolent, carefree manner of Old Spain. In 1848 two grandsons and their mother are the last of the proud line. The discovery of gold disturbs their calm existence.

"Gold!" gasped Don Hernandez in unexpressed eagerness, smiling happily at his brother.

But the head of the house replied sadly, "No, my brother, a gold rush is to be deplored. Gold awakens greed and lust—it spurs on one—our laborers will leave—it will mean a social upheaval."

The youth's enthusiasm waned with his smile. He had thought only of the adventure and nothing of the disastrous consequences.

But his Mother knew and sighed, "Gold and money mean so little, my sons, they cannot buy dreams, a good name and peace."

However, these fine immaterial notions of life meant nothing to the red blooded men. Practically every able bodied male in the state, thrilled with the news and prospects of gold, pulled up stakes and hit the trail to Sutter's Mill. That is, with the exception of the Spaniards, who with their usual love of lazy indolence and ease, failed to

One loyal and courageous little servant grasped the bride of his Master's favorite horse when he saw that Captain Stoner was about to mount and ride him away without permission.

"Spawn of the Devil!" cursed Stoner, "cast off!" and he knocked the peon backward with a cruel blow.

The helpless heap of abused humanity rolled and fell unconscious at Vasquez's feet.

"Captain Stoner! What does this mean?" demanded the young master, his Spanish eyes flashing with righteous fury.

"It means we've worked for you long enough," Stoner eyed his youthful employer with deadly calm. "You'll find your ship at anchor in the bay. We've resigned and are taking our pay in horses—understand?"

The sailors mounted on saddled steeds, gave mute evidence of the fact.

"Like a true son of a long line of proud aristocrats, Vasquez stood his ground. 'Stoner, you forget that I am head of the House of Vasquez.' His eyes took on a deadly glint. 'I order you to replace my property and return to your ship at once.'"

He waited with all the assurance of a small child who has asked a cow to give him a glass of milk and is surprised when his bidding is not immediately obeyed.

"You jellyfish!" hissed Stoner in contempt, "we're going to the gold fields and you can't stop us—this is a new era—the world's turned upside down, and now you and your family glory don't mean a damn thing."

"You shall not leave the Vasquez estate on stolen horses unless you ride me down."

Join the new progressive enterprise or sell their aristocratic fingers in gold digging.

As soon as the news was passed on by galloping horsemen the gold rush became an actuality.

Unwilling to admit the menace, Senora Vasquez turned into the hacienda with her sons. Their guests were due, shortly, and they must be ready to extend every hospitality.

No sooner had they left the patio than a faithful peon came running in breathlessly and stopped before them to whisk off his soiled cap and gasp in great agitation: "In the stable yard, señor—Captain Stoner and his sailor men—steal your horses!"

"The fiends!" snapped Vasquez angrily.

Don Hernandez, agitated by an equal anger, leaped to his feet and raced headlong down the stairs. It was a call to arms!

"Wait, my brother," called the elder, "I am the head of the house of Vasquez! You remain with our Mother and leave weighty matters to me."

With this reminder he disappeared in the house. Hardly a moment elapsed before he returned brandishing the great sword of the Vasquez. The same splendid blade that had been plunged into San Francisco ground by their illustrious ancestor seventy-two years earlier.

Don Hernandez was crestfallen and disappointed at being denied a chance to share in the excitement and avenge their name, but obedience to the head of the family had always been the first law of Spaniards. He reluctantly remained at his Mother's side.

Coming around the building with grim determined step the elder brother halted at sight of such feverish activity in the stable yard.

A gruff, burly, bewhiskered man of forty was Captain Stoner, and he appeared as much in command of the situation as if he had been on the bridge of his ship at sea. "You groovy swabs!" he thundered at the terrified peons, "throw some saddles on those horses' backs and tighten up the belly straps!"

They cowered before this verbal lash and waited upon the impatient Captain and his sailors like helpless galley slaves.

A quick intake of breath was followed by an amazed silence and Vasquez stood stunned by Stoner's defiance.

"All aboard for the gold fields, men!" signalled the Captain, and his sailors climbed into their saddles.

Vasquez suddenly regained his senses and sprang into the archway to bar their departure with his body.

"You shall not leave the Vasquez estate on stolen horses unless you ride me down." It was a grand gesture, devoid of all pretense and show—he meant it. The sun shone blindingly on the famous Vasquez sword as he held it high in his out-flung arm.

The sailors pulled in their horses to a dead stop and eyed their Captain inquiringly.

Stoner did not mount, but his mind was made up. The defiance of a romantic Spaniard was not going to alter his plans. Whipping out a pistol he fired—in cold blood—at the brave youth who was defending property and name with his very life.

A blood red spot grew on the breast of Vasquez's soft white shirt. He swayed on his feet. His left hand crept up—not to ease the pain but to stop his life's blood from oozing out until he had had a chance to prove that his eyes could still see and that his right hand was still strong and true enough to avenge the insult.

The report of Stoner's cowardly shot echoed in Senora Vasquez's heart. Instinctively she knew that it had found its mark in her son. Don Hernandez heard, it too, and without hesitancy rushed around the hacienda eager to take his place beside his brother.

Back in the stable yard the peon laborers and vaqueros were huddled together in fear and trembling, the sailors were stunned into silence, but Captain Stoner—a leech upon his big loose lips—blew through the smoking barrel of his revolver with glowing satisfaction. Summoning the last bit of his remaining strength, Vasquez lunged toward Stoner with drawn sword. His mouth, distorted with pain, opened pitifully to cry out, "A Vasquez avenges a Vasquez!" but the strain was too great and he fell tottering to the tiled floor.

Sleeve-Valve Motor Is Seen As Invader of Ranks of European Car.

Recent discussion of European versus American type motor cars, which has been going on since April of last year, was recently summarized by John Prioleau, writing for a leading English weekly paper, in the statement that the one American invasion which might give European manufacturers real cause for worry was that of American builders of Knight sleeve-valve motored cars.

He cited this as striking directly at the heart of quality production in Europe, where the Knight sleeve-valve motor, an American invention, was first developed and where it is now found in the most expensive and exclusive of European productions.

W. L. FORNEY

He gave as his reason for the statement he made the smoothness of performance which is a characteristic of the American built Knight-motored car at all speed ranges.

In America this year has seen the addition of an eight-cylindered Knight motor to the line produced by the F. B. Stearns Co., of Cleveland, O.; a marked increase in the output of the Willys-Knight built by Willys-Overland at Toledo, O., and the start of the Falcon Motors corporation in Detroit, which have produced a six-cylinder Knight-motored car in the $1,000 price class.

Statements issued by officials of the Falcon Motors corporation have established performance standards for this new car which are entirely consistent with those established by the makers in the higher price class, and the facts regarding the dealer organization for the new Falcon-Knight indicate that it will establish a high sales record in its first year.

The Crescent Auto company is distributor for the new Falcon-Knight cars in Adams county.

A STATEMENT BY PACKARD

WE ARE appreciative of the fact that with the large increase in demand for the Packard car you may be under the impression that delivery cannot be made for several months. This is wrong.

During this year Packard has invested nearly ten million dollars in increased manufacturing facilities. This expenditure is now bearing fruit in increased production, and today we can offer reasonable dates of delivery on nearly all types and practically immediate delivery on the Packard Six five-passenger sedan.

Why not buy a Packard Six today, pay for it within a year, as many prefer to do, and then keep it five or more years as does the average owner? If your present car is of average value it will more than make the new car down payment and leave no cash outlay except for the small monthly notes.

The Packard Six five-passenger sedan, delivered, costs you but including tax, freight and all of the necessary accessories.

CHRYSLER PUTS OUT NEW COUPE

De Luxe "52" With Rumble Seat Is Latest Addition To Company's Product.

A new de luxe coupe with rumble seat has been added by the Chrysler Corporation to its "52" model and will soon be on display at the salesrooms of Good and Wherley, local Chrysler dealers. It is listed at $795, f. o. b. Detroit.

This latest Chrysler is unusually distinctive in appearance, and presents a combination of grace, luxury and performance ability that, according to its sponsors, assures a wide demand from the large number of motorists who want both good transportation and real style at low price.

Roominess is an impressive feature of the new car, as of all its companions in the Chrysler "52" model. Its capacious front compartment has ample space for two and two more passengers can find seating accommodation in the rumble seat, where the wide removable back curtain enables them to converse readily with the other occupants of the car.

The luxurious appointments which characterize the entire range of the Chrysler "52" model are carried into the new de luxe coupe to the fullest extent. Gray, shark-grained leather is used for trimming the front compartment and the cushion springs are of the comfortable form-fitting saddle type. The rumble seat is trimmed in moleskin imitation leather to or.

The top of the car is of two how stationary type, covered with durable leather-like fabric. Landau braces are used and are exceptionally smart in appearance.

Chrysler color engineers have bestowed on the new coupes a full share of the attractive colorings which distinguish all their 1927 offerings.

Among the numerous other features of interest and value in the new car are the military front and cadet visor, which help the sweeping streamlines to produce an exceptionally smart, ensemble, vertical ventilating windshield, automatic wind shield wiper, rear view mirror, narrow corner pillars, Butler finish interior hardware, door pocket, molded runner draft plates around pedal and hand control, bullet type headlights, long springs, balloon tires, air cleaner, and Pebeo anti-theft numbering plates.

OVERHAULING FOR CARS IS URGED

Oakland-Pontiac Official Says Motors Should Be Given Adjustments.

Sick people do not work properly.

Neither can "sick" automobiles. The only difference being, a person can sense an ill-feeling and go to a doctor, while the automobile carries on until cold weather comes and forces a visible protest—then a repair job is needed. This is the observation of R. A. Armstrong, director of service of the Oakland Motor Car company, who urges owners to have their cars given a pre-winter inspection and adjustments necessary to insure maximum cold weather performance.

"The few essential attentions which are necessary before any automobile can maintain its best service under lower temperature conditions," said Mr. Armstrong, "require very little time. That hour or two will pay large dividends later in uninterrupted driving satisfaction. Many of the Oakland-Pontiac service stations have grouped these cold weather precautions under a flat rate.

"Highly important among these details is a change to lighter lubricants in crank case, transmission and rear end. A lighter grade is necessary to give the moving parts the same protection that they have received during warm weather with heavier lubricants.

"Gasoline tank, gasoline lines and carburetor should be cleaned. The carburetor should be adjusted to give a slightly richer mixture, which is nothing more than placing the car on a cold weather diet. Spark plugs should be cleaned or if they have been in service for more than 10,000 miles, they should be replaced. Distributor points should be cleaned and adjusted. Radiator hose connection should be tightened. If compression has been reduced by long service, it should be brought back to normal. Hard starting in winter often may be traced to low compression."

Be on your Guard When buying a Radiator Shutter

Be sure the shutter you get is automatic —controlled by the motor—be sure it's one you can't forget to operate

Closes Itself

when your motor needs
heat.

Opens Itself

when your motor needs
cool air.

WHEN you go to have your car equipped with a radiator shutter this year—keep these facts high in your mind:

1 Engineering authorities say that motor protection must be automatic to be fully effective. Note the fine cars on which automatic motor protection is a built-in feature.

2 Bear in mind that your motor was not built by guesswork. It cannot be operated by guesswork. Automatic motor protection works with your motor.
It is timed with scientific exactness.

3 There is only one automatic radiator shutter on the market. It is Pines Automatic Winterfront. There is nothing else like it—nothing that gives you similar protection.

Pines Automatic Winterfront will break you of the costly, dangerous
"choke" habit... it cuts the "warming-up" period to seconds... it prevents excessive crankcase dilution... it prevents premature cylinder wear... it saves gasoline... it keeps your motor always at the correct temperature... it prevents corrosion and condensation...
it reduces carbon... it keeps the car warm inside.

And does it all, independent of the car owner's memory. You put it on and forget it.
Models for all cars—priced $22.50 to $30.00. Special models for Ford, $15.00; Chevrolet, $17.50; Dodge Four, $20.00.

The motor car dealer who recommends and sells you a Pines Automatic Winterfront is considering your interests first. Take his advice. Your dealer will supply you.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

MEN OF SCIENCE

While ordinary mortals play
 And laugh and dance the hours away
 The men of science hid from sight,
 Toil at their problems through the night
 Within a laboratory room
 Seeking to bring a thought to bloom.

We laugh and jest and eat and sleep,
 The paths we tread are rutted deep,
 The little tasks we're hired to face
 Are known to all and commonplace,
 But men of science fare alone
 Into the future's great unknown.

From ceaseless toil at last there Springs
 One of the world's astounding things,
 Proved beyond doubt and fit for fools
 To place within their kits and tools,
 And this becomes our common text:
 "What will mankind discover next?"

We are the waiters of the world,
 Debtors to every test tube curd;
 The pale dependents on the few
 Who bring to birth the glorious new,
 Ours is to wonder while we live
 What next the scientists will give.

It was very still and quiet around the Big Red Barn as the little rabbit hopped along the Shady Lane that led to the pleasant Pasture. Old Sicem was sound asleep in his slanting roofed kennel house. The Weathercock on the Big Red Barn must have been asleep, too, for he never moved. Perhaps it was because Billy Breeze was nowhere about. Yes, the night was very still, and all the air was crisp and chill. Jack Frost was busy with his brush; the stars shone bright, the midnight hush enfolded earth and sky and stream, and all the woods seemed in a dream. Goodness me, there goes "Remmy," my faithful typewriter, into poetry! But, goodness me! again.
 He has neglected to put it into verse form. Maybe some of my little Jack Rabbit Fans can make a stanza with the rhyming lines. Start with the words, "Yes, the night was very still," boys and girls, and make a pretty verse.

"Almost home," sighed the little rabbit, hitching up his knapsack and taking a firmer hold of dear Uncle Lucky's stovepipe hat. "Maybe Mother will be waiting at the little gate in the old picket fence," and with a nimble hop-tot-tidy, he cleared the Old Stone Fence and landed in the Sunny Meadow, which, of course, at this time, wasn't sunny at all. It was all shimmering with moonlight. Very shimmering, for the hoar-frost sparkled on grass blade and leaf. Down the Old Cow Path he went, clipper clip, clipper lip, with nary a stumble, but almost a slip, for here and there little pools of water were covered with thin coatings of ice. Oh, I hope I'll find dear Uncle Lucky safe and well," murmured the tired, worried little rabbit, stopping just a moment to hitch up his knapsack, inside of which rattled his many colored lollypops. Wonder they didn't snap off the little wooden sticks!

All of a sudden, something dark moved along the Old Rail Fence. "Can that be Danny Fox?" gasped the bunny boy, his little heart going pitter patter and his furry knees clatter clatter. "Dear, Oh dear. I can't hop very fast with Uncle Lucky's stove-pipe hat in my paw. Dear, Oh dear!"

"Ha, ha! Ha, ha!" cried Danny Fox, Suddenly turning his head.
 "Is that the little bunny boy?
 He ought to be safe in bed."

But I'm glad he isn't," and with a bound, he set after the fleeing little rabbit.

"Oh, it is that dreadful fox," panted

the little bunny, speeding up his tired legs.

"Dearest me, what shall I do?
 If I don't get home quick,
 He'll pull my little knapsack off
 And break my candy stick."

And faster than ever went the bunny boy, lipperty lip, clipper clip, and lucky to say, with never a slip, and over the picket fence hopped with a jump and landed amid the bushes ker-

But consider how difficult to assure such niceties, even for an emperor, in those days. There was no gas water heater to supply that steaming flood of hot water at the turn of the spigot. There was no gas heated laundry equipment to make a twice-a-day change of linen inconsequential as it would be to us of the twentieth century.

Today, thanks to Gas, even the humblest home can enjoy what were, in the days of Napoleon, luxuries for an emperor. Napoleon, luxuries for an emperor.

Confidence of His Party in "Sam" Buhrman is Splendidly Shown in Primary Plurality

Nominee For County Commissioner Equipped By Experience In Private And Public Life To Manage Affairs Of Adams County Taxpayers.

Two of the principal attributes which should recommend a candidate to the voters are experience and time to devote to the office to which he aspires. These qualifications, and others equally as important are to be found in S. A. Buhrman, Straban township, who, with D. R. Stoops, Hamiltonban township, is the Republican nominee for county commissioner.

Mr. Buhrman's experience is two-fold. He has met the problems of farmers and urban residents alike by his long and active business relations, having been a merchant and in the retail wagon business for fifteen years. In that time, he made and held the good-will of his customers by fair and square dealing, and no one can be found who will gainsay his reputation for honesty and integrity.

To his practical business knowledge is the added feature of his experience as a commissioner in Franklin county. Some would use this against him as a candidate, but Republicans showed their belief in the need of having an experienced man sit on the board of county commissioners by nominating Mr. Buhrman by a large plurality. Of the five Republican candidates at the primary, the Straban township man received 1434 votes, near 300 more than his nearest opponent. If Republicans are willing to back an experienced candidate to that extent, should not Democrats join with their Republican partisans in bringing about Mr. Buhrman's election?

Mr. Buhrman, or "Sam" as he would rather be called, was born on a farm in Liberty township. Although he resided outside of Adams county for a number of years, he was a taxpayer in the county ever since he was 21 years old. He is married to an Adams county girl, Miss Daisy L. Griffin, and for several years, long enough to familiarize himself with local problems, he has lived along the Lincoln Highway, four miles east of Gettysburg.

He still owns a large farm near Fairfield, but lives retired, so that he would have ample time to devote to the office of county commissioner aside from attending the regular weekly meetings every Tuesday.
